~ Speaker: Coroner Tutton ~

Coroner Tutton was admitted in 1986 and started her career as a High Court Judges' Clerk. She then worked at the Crown Law Office briefly, then in the Crown Solicitor's office in Wellington as a Crown Prosecutor doing criminal trials. She spent 12 years working in various roles within the Institute of Professional Legal Studies, during some of which she simultaneously worked for Police as a legal advisor, and during which time she had three children, then went to the Commerce Commission, a legal training company, and back to Police. She has held numerous roles and portfolios in Police, including managing the legal team for the lower half of the country, developing and delivering advocacy training for Police prosecutors, acting as legal advisor for the Pike River Mine operation, and training Police staff in 5 Pacific countries in human rights and policing ethics. She was appointed as a coroner in 2015 (one of three resident in Christchurch). With the consent of the Attorney-General, she has been doing voluntary work in the Pacific since her appointment, and is currently revisiting the fundamentals of law, with two of her children doing first year law this year.
